Carpentry Students at El Camino to Learn by Doing Actual Building

Carpentry students at El Camino College will actually construct a permanent building on the campus as part of their training program during the fall semester beginning Sept. 14, Dr. Lyle Tussing, director of instruction announced this week.

Students enrolling in the two-year day course will be given practical construction experience when they undertake building a new plant header house for use of the agriculture department. All work on the 28 by 60 foot building will be done by the carpentry students, from pouring the concrete foundation and installing the plumbing and wiring, to doing the cabinet work.

"Construction of the building will give students an opportunity to apply in a practical way everything they learn in the course," according to Ben Taylor, carpentry and cabinet making instructor. Preparation for employment in some phase of the building trade is stressed in the two-year course leading to an Associate of Arts degree. Every phase of building, including plastering, roofing, masonry, and contracting, is covered, and students have an opportunity to specialize in some branch of the trade. No previous experience is required.

"This course is also recommended for young men interested in entering some trade, but uncertain about their plans. Everyone is given an opportunity to learn about all phases of the construction industry and to develop any special interests or abilities," instructor Taylor said.

The recently completed carpentry shop includes the latest equipment, including a table saw, radial arm saw, shaper, jointer, hand saw, portable router, and sander. Ben Taylor, instructor, is a licensed contractor with extensive practical experience in carpentry, roofing, masonry, and cabinet making. For 10 years he managed his own construction firm.

Registration for the fall semester will be held Sept. 11, 12 and 13 at the college, located at Redondo Beach and Crenshaw boulevards.

Special early registration for veterans is scheduled on Sept. 6.

Governor Calls Conference on School Problems

Governor Warren this week announced he will call a special session of the legislature on Sept. 20 to consider urgent problems of the state's school construction program, civilian defense measures, and social service legislation.

"The school construction program under the recently ratified bond issue of $250,000,000 must continue without interruption until there are enough classrooms for all of California's school children," the Governor said.

"That was my purpose in advocating it and I am sure the intention of the legislature in submitting it as well as of the people in ratifying it.

"The attorney general is of the opinion that this cannot be done; that allocations to the school districts must be limited under the law to $5,000,000 per month. If this is the legal effect of the present law, it must be changed immediately to permit uninterrupted construction until the job is done," the Governor added.

He said there are two principal matters of immediate urgency in connection with the war situation: (1) amendment or re-enactment of the State's Sabotage Prevention Act, and (2) liberalization of voter registration laws to make it possible for men serving in the armed forces overseas to vote in this year's general election.

Revision of several of California's social service programs will be necessary, the Governor said, if the President signs H.R.-6000, which extends very considerably Federal programs such as social security, unemployment compensation, aid to needy children, and other social service programs.

MODEL FARM AT FAIR

A model dairy barn will be in full operation for the 11 days of the California State Fair in Sacramento, Aug. 31 through Sept. 10.

SALMON FISHING GOOD

Ocean salmon fishing is reported by the National Automobile Club as being very good at Trinidad and better than fair on Humboldt bay.
